

Lo-Fi Design Link to People-Centered Design

My designs intended to reflect on the following topics related to people-centred design:

Affordances - Web links are underlined to show that they are links while regular text is not underlined. Fields have placeholder text in them to show that they are fields rather than images, while images have a cross through them to indicate that they are images.

Gestalt Principles - Pictures are shown to occupy a grid format which is visually stimulating to look at. Similar elements have similar styles.

Constraints - The design is simple but filled out to ensure that navigation is simple and clear. All pages are accessible using a navigation bar that can be found on every page.

By incorporating these principles People-Centred Design is prioritized and the overall design of the site will be pleasant for users to experience.
